The body is the changing section of the website.

On the home page's body there is an array of cards/posters of the most recent releases which are also links to their more individual and descriptive pages.

Following a link to a title's individual page displays the details of the title along with various links to the cast and crew of the title.

Likewise, a person's link will provide information in the body of the page as well as links to the projects they have worked on.

The registration and login pages will be kept very similar, but without the relevant searches section to the left. In the body you can provide your login details or registration details to create a new account.
